Pennsylvania-based Vertex, a provider of tax management solutions, announced the release of Vertex O Series 4.0, the latest version of their web-services-based tax automation solution. The new version is designed to deliver expanded functionality and includes new features to enable automation for a broader range of transaction tax scenarios that span a wide array of business needs.

A part of the Vertex O Series 4.0 release, the company launched Vertex Lease Tax O Series, a solution tailored specifically to the needs of the leasing industry.

A statement from Vertex said the product increases their solution offerings to meet the needs of an even broader market, and reaches specialized industries and businesses with unique tax management requirements.

"Tax professionals face many challenges, including increased pressure to move beyond functioning predominantly as a cost center," said Gerry Hurley, vice president of opportunity management at Vertex. "O Series gives tax professionals the flexibility required for cost-effective tax management performance, without sacrificing the necessary controls for compliance with Sarbanes-Oxley and corporate governance best practices."
