Improve Your Taxability Management

Vertex Indirect Tax enables you to set up the system with company-specific data through the Taxability Manager. The system provides an intuitive product category hierarchy and supports jurisdiction-specific rules. Using the Taxability Manager, asset identifiers or codes from your financial system can be mapped to these categories, and jurisdiction-specific taxability can be automatically applied by the calculation system, thus eliminating the burden of per-transaction taxability determination. Tax professionals can also enter exemption certificates and direct-pay permit information associated with their customers. As a result, all exemption information is available quickly and efficiently, if needed during an audit. The Taxability Manager also provides your tax department with flexible set-up options – from full reliance on the system-supplied taxability rules to full customization according to your business practices, or even a combination of both options.

Customize Rules with Leasing Taxability Drivers

Lessors of vehicles and agricultural equipment need a way to base the taxability of property on the weight and horsepower of the equipment and the term of the lease – not just the tax jurisdiction and the customer's tax status. Vertex Leasing provides these additional parameters, which can be associated with a lease contract. These parameters also contain pre-populated rules for the most common dimensions for lease transactions, namely equipment weight and lease duration.

Successfully Manage Multiple Impositions

Vertex Leasing supports calculation of sales taxes, in addition to any surcharges and/or fees that may be associated with the contract. For instance, leases involving vehicles and agricultural equipment may face the imposition of surcharges and fees in addition to the normal sales tax. Vertex Indirect Tax for Leasing contains logic that identifies the existence of multiple impositions and eliminates the need for manual preparation of invoices with surcharges and fee impositions.
